プロジェクトコード : CAT10

プロジェクト名 : Estany de Sils: management and restauration of a protected Catalan wetlands

期間 (プロジェクト開始日～終了日)

8/20/2022 ~ 9/3/2022

背景

Emys Foundation is a non-profit organisation dedicated to the conservation of nature, especially wetlands and also the terrapin Emys orbicularis, that give the name to the Foundation.

Born in 2003, Emys foundation is located close to Riudarenes in a country farm called Can Moragues. It aims to help various territorial actors to manage the environmental and natural areas in a sustainable way by promoting Agroecology, a sustainable forest management approach, environmental education and eco-tourism.

The organization works with a conciliatory view, where the challenge is involving the owners, managers and users of the territory in the natural heritage values, its sustainable management and its long-term conservation.

All this is done by voluntary work, land stewardship, research, conservation, education and consciousness-raising.

活動内容

The main objective of this work camp is to show the environmental reality and learn how to intervene in it by contributing to the conservation of the Natural Area of Sils wetlands.

The participant will learn about the biodiversity and characteristic habitats of these wetlands and methods for the conservation and management of natural areas.

The tasks are strictly linked with the preservation of its natural heritage, and the spaces they will work will be:

- Standing lagoon.
- Old viewpoint.
- Water canal.

- Infrastructures.

- Awareness.

The technical assignment will be:

- Eradication and elimination of invasive flora and fauna.

- Creation of a pond.

- Creating and recovering connectivity spaces.

- Maintenance and restoration of infrastructure.

- Recovery of the central island and creation of points of insolation on the shores.

- Garbage collection.
